

THE OBJECTION HANDLING HANDBOOK

The goal is to make sure to posture and position yourself as the professional that has something that they want—protection and peace of mind for the family. You are doing them a favor. You have to first get in the state of mind that they are the patient, and you are the doctor. You are not trying to sell them anything, simply there to help them with what THEY are asking for. You want to see the so called “objections” they are giving you, more as they just need more clarification. You are convinced they need it. So when they ask for something, they are simply seeking more information and they are simply seeking clarification on the process to get to their desired goal—protection for their family. You are in control as they have filled out a request and raised their hand, or they are an existing client desiring and needing the service you are providing, you are there to help.

As you will see in reading these rebuttals you are always answering a question with a question. Whoever asks the most questions wins and because they are in need of your service, it only makes sense for you to stay in control and provide the structure of the conversation with questions. You will notice the key question to ask is the close questions what time is better ____ or _____. This is a yes, yes question which are the only questions you want to ask, outside of rhetorical questions.

Key words to point out:

- Perfect- this word is used as a relating word. Whatever they say, its perfect, you are meeting with them where they are and then through the rebuttal you are going to guide them back to booking the appointment.
- Listen – this word is used to say lean in what I am going to say is important and I am important, because you need protection for your family, and I am trying to help you.

Key phrases:

- I don't have a lot of time
- I can put you down between appointments
- I will have 15 appts tomorrow, I only ask that...
- I am a field underwriter not a sales rep
- I have to verify that you are alive and breathing
- I know how important this is to you

(all the key phrases are intended to evoke the thought process that you are busy, you are doing them a favor, everybody is getting this and its urgent.)

Action steps to get better with objections:

- Always address objections with—Agree, Answer and Ask
- Massive activity—the more you get objections the better you will get
- Make sure your mind is right, remember you are the doctor, and they are the patient-read affirmations aloud declaring you are the professional
- Practice, practice and rehearse

Key transitional Phrase: to transitions from any objection they give you is: “perfect the purpose of my call is to see what you will best qualify for, now (Name_) let me ask you...

I got to go, call me back later

- Perfect, listen_(name) I am leaving the office myself and don't have time now. The purpose of the call was to set up a time to get back to you. What time are you typically back in the door from work? Ok, I don't have the time, but will put you down at _____. The only thing I ask due to the number of appointments I have scheduled, is to give me a window between _____ and _____, is that fair enough? Ok, perfect I will be out there at that time to drop off the information you want, and I look forward to meeting you and helping you then...have a great night

I already got it taken care of/ I am already meeting with another agent this week.

- Perfect, now_____ most families send back multiple requests, to look at different options compare and make sure they have the best plan for their family. Is it fair to assume you did the same thing/ Ok, perfect, what I will do is get the information and options out to you that you haven't received, so you can do what you originally wanted compare...now we are running behind, so I won't have a lot of time. I'll have about 15 minutes and can put you down our schedule, I have about 15 appointments that day, can you give me a window between _____ and _____. Perfect, and _____ the only thing I ask and expect because of our schedule is that you definitely make sure to be there...is that fair enough. Perfect, I look forward to meeting you and help you.

Can you tell me how much it is going to cost? (The quote Objection) and can you send it to me in the mail?

- Great question, now_____ these plans are non-medical, which means you don't have to give your blood, or pee in a cup. As a field underwriter they just want me to verify you are alive and breathing and get the information out to you. Now we are running behind, so I won't have a lot of time, but can get you in either at _____ or _____ what time is better.

I don't have time this week, can you call me back next week (the scheduling objection)

- Perfect, I definitely understand, they have me being busy the next couple of weeks, they have me managing several different counties and we are behind. Listen, I know how important this is to you and your family, so I will put down some notes to best accommodate. What time are you typically in the door from work? And your spouse? Ok what I'll do is this, my schedule is booked the only two days I am out there in that area, so I can't promise anything, but I know how important this is to you, so I will go ahead and see if I can reschedule my _____ with an earlier time and get to you then. If I can't do that, I will let you know and the only thing I'm trying to get you in, is to give me a window between _____ and _____ is that ok?

I have gotten multiple calls about final expense protection.

- Yes, most people do as it is typical to fill out a couple of requests to shop and compare and make sure you have the best plan for you. Now listen, _____ I am a field underwriter not a sales rep, so we use a number of carriers to help best help each client I meet with. I have about 15 appts tomorrow but I can fit you in between appointments to get you the information dropped off to you either at ____ or ____ what time is better?

I already have life insurance.

- That is great to hear. My most successful clients have life insurance, but they needed final expense insurance and let me tell you why. Life insurance will pay out, but it will take a death certificate to get the benefit from that life insurance. It takes 3 weeks or longer to get a death certificate. In the meantime, the funeral home or the crematory want their money. I work with carriers that will pay their benefit out without a death certificate in 24 to 48 hrs which takes the burden off your loved ones having to figure out to pay those expenses.

Objections for older leads:

I don't remember filling this out

- I understand to refresh your memory you put down your DOB is _____ and your address is _____ is that correct? Perfect, most people that send the request you did, want to ensure when they die that there is no financial hardship on their loved one, does that sound like that would be important to you as well? Perfect, my job is to get that information out to you that you originally requested as it shows you haven't received it. I will have about 15 minutes to get this to you between appointments at either _____ or _____ which time is better?

I am no longer interested

- Ok, I know this was originally important to you like it is for every family that sends this back in requesting information. Are you no longer interested because you don't believe you can't afford it or you don't think you will qualify?

I can't afford it

- Ok, I am an independent field underwriter not a salesperson. So what I will do is look at all the carriers and options that will fit your budget, Now listen I won't have a lot of time because we are running behind, but I can put you down between appointments at either _____ or _____ which is better?

I don't think I can qualify

- Ok, I am a field underwriter not a salesperson. So what I will do is look at all the options you can qualify for. Now I know this is important to you, but I won't have a lot of time as we are running behind. I can put you down between appointments at either _____ or _____ which is better?

No, I am not interested, take me off the list

- Ok, I am not interested either. Listen, I am not a salesperson, I am a field underwriter, and my job is to get the information out to you to release us of liability, what you do with the information is up to you. Now I won't have a lot of time as we are running behind, but I can stop by between appointments at either _____ or _____ which time is better for you?

We already got this taken care of

- Perfect, I will update our system we have already helped you. Now it shows you haven't got a courtesy annual review completed, What I can do as a field underwriter is review the benefits of the policy, we helped you with and see if there is any cost of insurance changes to see if we can get your premium lowered. I won't have a lot of time, but I can do a quick review between appointments at either ____ Or ____ which time is better?

In Home Presentation Objections:I can't afford it. (or) We don't make quick decisions.

- I understand, I have worked with many people in this area who may be just like you. They had a fixed budget; they had a fixed income. Because I am the independent field underwriter, I was able to help them get the protection they needed at a price they could afford. Just to be clear is it the monthly payments we need to adjust to better fit your budget to know everything is taken care of and not left to your loved ones?

I already have life insurance.

- That is great to hear. My most successful clients have life insurance, but they needed final expense insurance and let me tell you why. Life insurance will pay out, but it will take a death certificate to get the benefit from that life insurance. It takes 3 weeks or longer to get a death certificate. In the meantime, the funeral home or the crematory want their money. I work with carriers that will pay their benefit out without a death certificate in 24 to 48 hrs which takes the burden off your loved ones having to figure out to pay those expenses. In addition, we have found that when someone passes the expenses for the surviving spouse continue. Expenses like, rent, mortgage, maybe credit card debt, utilities. By having a plan in place can make your life insurance even more valuable and provide support for your loved ones quickly upon one of you passing away? Does that make sense to you?

Let me think about it.

- I understand, I know this is a big decision. If you think about it, only two things apply. First, are we going to need it and second, can I afford it. Are we going to need it. As we talked about earlier this is something everyone needs it because when something happens someone is going to pay for it no one gets out of here free. The only thing left is can you afford it? Let me ask you a question can you afford not to do this? Just to be clear, We can work within your budget to help you cover your funeral expenses, your family expenses or the total estimated funeral expenses. Which one of these ways is going to best fit your budget to know everything is taken care of?

Or, When I help my other clients, I have heard that before and many times it is because I did not do a great job explaining it clearly enough. Is there a certain area you would like me to go over again? What is it that you need to think about?

I need to talk to my kids.

- I understand, but if you were to call them right now they are going to say one of two things...first, thing they may say it is your money you do what you think is best or the second, and most likely, is they are going to say "Oh mom and Dad don't worry about that" the main reason they say that is they don't want to think about the fact that their parent or parents are no longer going to be with them. You have protected them all your life, why would you want them to face the burden of making these decisions on one of the most difficult days in their life? Decisions that could be financially challenging to them. Just so I understand are any of these options going to put a hardship on you financially?

I don't care, it doesn't matter to me.

- I appreciate that, I see this from time to time and usually the reason is something other than I don't care because in reality most people don't want to leave a debt to their loved ones as part of their legacy. Knowing that no one gets out of here free that someone will have to pay for it, why is it you feel that way?

I want to go to the local funeral home.

- I appreciate you wanting to go to the local funeral home and talk to them. This plan actually gives you more flexibility and can be used at any funeral home in the country. Typically, I can offer you double the coverage than what you would pay for at a funeral home. Then once you get this plan in place you can go to the funeral home and pick out your casket and the type of services you would want. Does that make sense to you?

I already have a plan at my funeral home.

- That's great, I am glad you already started planning for your funeral expenses. However, as we discussed (or about to discuss) there are two parts to your final expenses: your funeral expenses and your family expenses. Since you have already have your final expenses covered, I recommend we go ahead and take care of the family expenses. To cover the expenses that still come due when someone passes away expenses like, rent, mortgage, maybe credit card debt, utilities, taxes, medical costs. Does that make sense to you?

My children will take care of this for me.

- I understand, but unfortunately what happens too often is the children then put together a go-fund me account. Unfortunately, with those accounts less than 5% collect $5,000 a funeral is over $12,000 on the average, over $18,000 if you include family expenses plus any money collected is going to be taxable to the person who gets it. Life insurance is not taxable to the person receiving the benefits. Or, they put it on a credit card and end up paying for something they don't want to be reminded of every month, for another ten years. By making these decisions early we can eliminate any disputes, or financial burden on your loved ones. Does that make sense to you?
